

Kinloss, Moray

Population 1,052

Kinloss is located in Moray. It is best known as an RAF base (established in 1939) but the base closed in 2012. Many of the former workers on the base have set up local micro businesses.

This type of town is characterised by its military base. This unique quality creates a remarkably small group. Employment participation is high and largely provided by the base. These towns have the lowest levels of deprivation. They are largely populated by young families. There are a higher number of women staying at home compared to other types of town and a high percentage children under five years old.

Kinloss is an interdependent to dependent town.

It is in a group of its own according to USP analysis, which combines typology and assessment of inter-relationships.
