

Springside

NORTH AYRSHIRE

POPULATION 1,133

Springside is in North Ayrshire. Its origins are due to its location on the road south from Kilmarnock to Irvine although the original settlement was known as Bankhead. Springside was a staging post. In the late 19th century coal mining brought new employment and workers to the town and the mine owners built new housing. By the 1950s all the pits were closed. Public housing replaced the miners' rows. Extensive new housing estates have added to the town which is primarily residential.

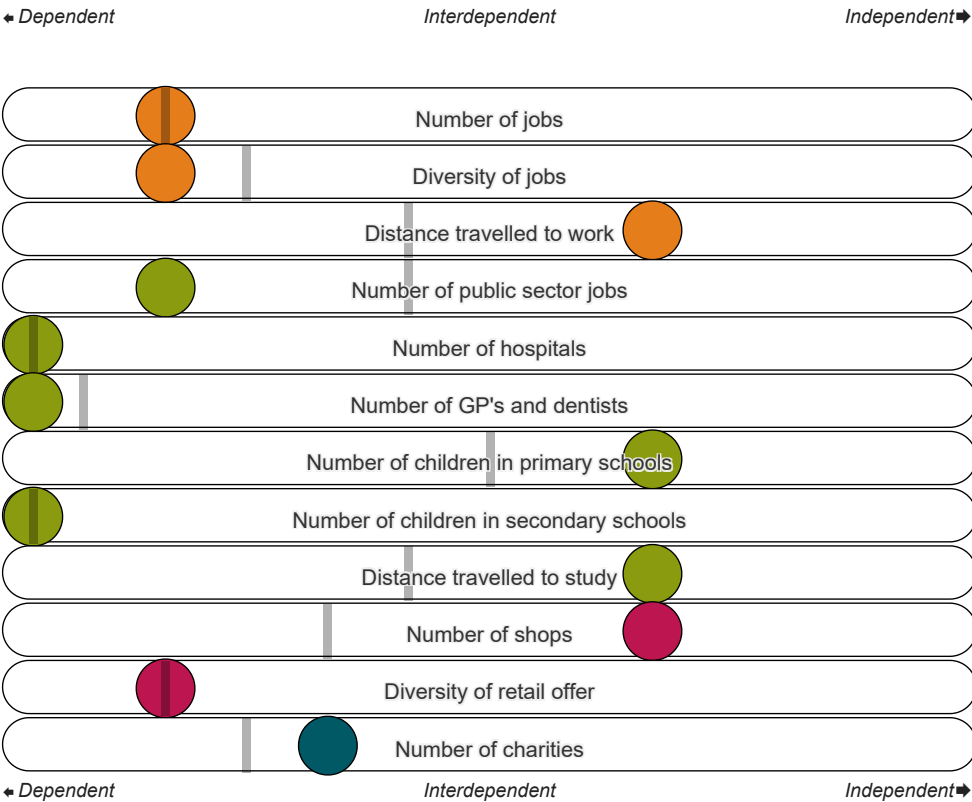

In this, and similar small towns, people experience more challenging circumstances with higher rates of unemployment, poorer health, lack of a car, lower levels of education and lower social grades than other groups. A higher proportion live in social rented housing. There is a higher proportion of single person households and lone parents.

Springside is a dependent to interdependent town.
